Summer and the danger of fire will soon be upon us. Let us give our fire-fighters the needed equipment. Bring on your contribution to the Pine Cone.

Walker for Congress

George S. Walker, the energetic building and loan commissioner, an old state senator and assemblyman, has thrown his beaver into ring. He announces his intention of contesting the seat in Congress now held by E. A. Hayes, Esq., of San Jose. Unless we miss our guess, or still better man comes forward, he will beat him.—Holister Bee.

Washington's Birthday

The California Society of the Sons of the Revolution has inaugurated a nation-wide movement calling upon the ministers of all denominations to make addresses concerning George Washington on Sunday, February 20. The purpose is to arouse the greatly needed patriotism that it is asserted is lacking in the United States.

Dr. Roberts, What's the Answer?

Carmel, Cal., Feb. 12
Editor Pine Cone,

Dear Sir: By reading the papers I see the contract is to be let soon to build the Monterey end of the Salinas-Monterey road, to be finished before summer travel commences.

This completes all roads in our Supervisorial district being repaired or built, except the road from Monterey by Carmel, Carmel Mission, and Hatton's dairy.

Why are we neglected? Why is not the Carmel Bay Improvement Association or Carmel Civic League at work to find out why Carmel Mission Road is not built before summer travel begins? Subscriber.

To Revive Civic League

At the regular monthly meeting of the Arts and Crafts Society on Tuesday last a resolution was passed requesting the chairman of the civic section of revive the sometime defunct Civic League. In accordance with this resolution Miss J. M. Culbertson requests all those women interested in the civic betterment of Carmel to meet at the studio, next the Library, tomorrow afternoon at 3.

To Make Monterey a Brigade Post

Monterey is desirous of securing an appropriation from this congress to increase the Presidio of Monterey to a full brigade post of cavalry and mobile artillery. To this end letters are being sent to the various state representatives in Washington as well as to the chairman of the committee in military affairs.

They have requested the assistance of the Pine Cone in this, and similar letters will be forwarded from the local organization. We wish Monterey every success in this endeavor to extend the government holdings, and the expansion of Uncle Sam's monthly payroll in the county.

Employment Bureau

The government has opened a Free Employment Bureau and Labor Exchange in the U. S. Civil Service Building, San Francisco, for the purpose of bringing the job and the jobless together without cost to employer or workman.

The Carmel Postoffice is supplied with blank forms of application for the benefit of farmers of the Carmel valley and others who seek help, and the man who wants employment. These blanks are transmitted through the mail to the office of the bureau in San Francisco without postage. This service is free to the employer and employee. Applications can be made with the blank forms, by telephone, letter or personal call.

Now You Can Register

W. L. Overstreet, deputy county clerk, has just received a supply of registration blanks and is prepared to place your name on the great register. Call on him at the Pine Cone office and if for any reason you are not able to go to the office let him know and he will call on you.

The Supreme Court has ruled that voters may state their party affiliations when registering. The first election for this year will be the presidential primaries in May. In order to vote at this election voters should be registered 30 days before the date of the election. Register now before it is too late.

Art News at Home and Abroad

It is one of the paradoxes of the human mind that the public that shies so violently at the word "art" is the same public that is most fond of "pictures." The best proofs of the actual popularity of "art" once the public begins to understand that there is nothing mysterious about it, are the figures of the Chicago Art Institute, which passed 1,000,000 people through its doors last year. In New York, the Metropolitan Museum—one of the world's great museums—is so far away from the center of things that its large attendance is due as much to the Fifth Avenue bus lines and that it is a "center of interest" as to any real curiosity about its contents.

But in Chicago the art institute is down town, where people can get into it without any trouble. The figures show how they take advantage of it. The result of that growing intimacy with beauty may be seen in the Chicago orchestra, and other definite developments on the part of that great population, away from the crudities of an almost overwhelming material growth.

E. Charlotte Fortune, an artist well known in Carmel, has had an exhibition in the Schussler gallery in San Francisco a fine specimen of portraiture. It is a crayon of the artist's brother, and the work speaks for itself. For her breadth of stroke in oils and in other mediums applied to landscape, Miss Fortune has a reputation, but the crayon shows conservatism in treatment.

The American Academy in Rome has announced its competitions for the prizes of Rome in painting, architecture and sculpture, which occurs annually. The prizes consist of the following: A fellowship in architecture, of the value of $1000 a year for three years; an annual fellowship in sculpture, painting and landscape architecture, each of the same value and for the same term of years.

Miss Anne Bremner has on exhibition a decorative piece which has for its theme tall flower in foreground and deep-shadowed hills in the distance.

THE NATION'S GREAT

To place before his readers the news he is able to gather is the duty of the publisher of a small-town weekly newspaper. But his duty does not end there. There are events and personages of the past of which the public should be reminded, and this idea prompts the publication of what follows.

In a small, out-of-the-way, apparently God-forsaken settlement in Kentucky, there was born on February 12, 1809, the sixteenth President of the United States—Abraham Lincoln, and on Saturday we should celebrate.

The story of Lincoln's career should be graven on the heart of every native and adopted citizen of the United States. Indeed, the whole world would be the better for the emulation of Abraham Lincoln.

As year follows year, and time gives the proper perspective to his greatness, Abraham Lincoln is accredited the most notable of Americans, a recognition that extends throughout the world.

Lincoln's life and Lincoln's sayings have been quoted and pictured to a remarkable extent since the outbreak of the European war. The British papers, especially, delight in finding parallels that they can emphasize in support of British policies.

The London Spectator of January 16th contains an extended article on the subject of "Mr. Lincoln and Compulsion," in support of the condition that England is facing—conscription to fill the ranks of her European and African armies. The Spectator goes to the Life of Lincoln, published long after his death, and finds therein an address prepared by the martyr president in explanation of the Draft. The address was never given publicity until it appeared in this autobiography, for the reason that it was not needed, the American states accepting conscription as a necessity that required no explanation.

The Spectator says "without hesitation," that Lincoln's defense of the Draft is one of the greatest papers ever produced in the English language.

"This memorable document," the London comment proceeds, "was never issued, and for a very curious reason. The moment the Draft was actually put into operation, not only did it do its work splendidly, but it proved to be far less unpopular than had been imagined. It was seen that there was no need for any defense of it from Lincoln. Accordingly Lincoln, not because he disbelieved in his arguments, but from that moderation and reticence which always marked him, refused to publish a document for which there was no need, and which from its strength of language might conceivably have irritated a considerable number of men who were rapidly becoming reconciled to the Draft."

The influence of the life of Lincoln has been immeasurable upon the development of America; not merely because of its example to succeeding generations, not merely because he was the Great Emancipator, but because he stands out, in Christendom, as the most striking figure of pure democracy. His genius no one questions; his sincerity, his patriotism, his sacrifice ennobled him, and his eternal glory would have been no less without the luster of his martyrdom. A product of the most humble of American homes, with no schooling except that gained through native tenacity and natural ability, Lincoln fought his way up from the log cabin to the Hall of Immortal Fame, overcoming gigantic obstacles, silencing ridicule, enforcing respect for his nation and winning love and honor for himself.

As time progresses, Lincoln's memory becomes more sacred to Americans, and his birthday more significant. Today not only the nation that he saved, but the world that he illumined honors the name of Abraham Lincoln.

EDITORIAL BRIEFS

A citizen whose business requires him to drive about Carmel a great deal, remarked a few days ago: "What this town needs is an Improvement Club." A good idea; who'll start it?

If the Presidential election were held tomorrow, to judge by conversation one hears in various quarters, Woodrow Wilson would carry Carmel almost two to one. That trip through the Middle-West was certainly a vote-getter.

The Pine Cone's story concerning the destruction of the Ostrich Tree has been printed in various California papers, and regret is keen anent the ruin of this noted landmark.

Trot out your candidates. A. P. Fraser and R. B. Cherington have announced emphatically that they will not be candidates in April to succeed themselves as members of the local Sanitary Board. A Sanitary Assessor is to be elected at that time also.

Next Saturday is Lincoln's birthday. Celebrate. Hoist a flag, read a Lincoln story, or tell one. Turn to the Ls in the encyclopedia and read about him. Do not forget to do something to honor the day and the man.

The season for taking Red abalones is closed in February. The closed season for Green, Pink and Black abalones is February, March and April. 'Ware the game warden!

Request has been made to ask the local moving-picture promoters to provide a "funny night," when only comedy films be shown and amateurs asked to go on.

Forever and Forever

I think of all thou art to me,
I dream of what thou canst not be,
My life is cursed with thoughts of thee,
Forever and forever.

My heart is full of grief and woe,
I see thy face where'er I go,
I would, alas! it were not so,
Forever and forever.

Perchance if we had never met,
I had been spared this mad regret,
This endless striving to forget,
Forever and forever.

Perchance, if thou wert far away,
Did I not see thee day by day,
I might again be blithe and gay,
Forever and forever.

Ah, no; I could not bear the pain
Of never seeing thee again,
I cling to thee with might and main,
Forever and forever.

Ah, leave me not—I love but thee;
Blessing or curse whiche'er thou be,
Oh, be as thou hast been to me,
Forever and forever.

Keep It Up

It does not pay to advertise, say some merchants who have done but little of it, and that without keeping it up. The incident of the boy and the pump illustrates the matter very well. The boy was sent after a pail of water. He poured in the priming, poured out as much as he poured in. Then he stopped to rest and the priming ran down. After some time of alternate pumping and resting he concluded it did not pay to pump and quit in disgust. The merchant who does not believe in advertising does it like the boy did the pumping. He advertised again and then concluded advertising didn't pay.

The Evolution of Weeds

In a very laudable attempt to boom the sowing of wild flower seeds, one of our eastern writers reports:

"Whoever plants a flower drives out a weed, it is said."

We'd like to know who said it. Must have been some theorist whose experience is limited to reading the seed catalogues. Folks who really plant flowers know that whoever plants a flower has got to fight like blazes to keep about 40 weeds from driving it out.

There isn't one flower in 50 that will make any well-bred weed to its heels. This is natural and all right, too. Very many of our flowers are derived from so-called "weeds," and the best of them, too, contain the hardihood and vitality of the weed-mother. Almost invariably, it is the natural that drives out the artificial or so-called "cultivated." In the strength of the weed-parent lies the virtue of many of our most prized flowers. Magnificent roses from "stock" of the poor, weedy wild rose of the fence corners; dozens of fine varieties of helianthus from a Mexican weed; daisies, ipomea, phlox and stocks without end from "weeds" that other people fight with hoe or plow. To enable man to develop, hybridize, diversify floral beauties, nature made the weeds strong, and they remain stronger than their step-children, the cultivated plants.

Don't plant a flower and expect it to drive out a weed. Driving out the weeds is your labor of love in behalf of your flowers. If you haven't such love, don't plant flowers; plant pole beans.

Uchimoto Makes Error in Taxonomy

EDITORS, CARMEL PINE CONES,

Dear Mr. Sir:

While strolling with Mr. N. Sakusaki near vicinity where cows containing milk for Hon. Watbery are peacefully browse on sea weed and other digestible et ceteras, we notice several number of gentman who are apparently seeming to be industrious gathering chick-eggs and placing on miniature hillock, before hitting strenuously with walk-sticks of strange looking qualities. "Noko, why this queer maneuvers? Let us get more closely and make possible inquiries." On arrival at one (1) gentman who are busy scraping emptiness of pipe-bowl with knife-blades and diligence, I ask for information why such retaliate at chick-egg which seem harmless. Amid frowns of face, he dib with quickness: "Those whitish spheres are unknown in any genuses by which ornithologies are connected, but are know as game of golf-ball and are of considble durability."
